These wonderful delusions have been mystifying London for the past two years, and are still anaccounted for. Nothing since the Time of the Pharachs ever created such profound astonishment" (says the London Times.)-

The effects produced are seemingly allied to the supernatural. A box is placed upon the stage, and any one is at liberty to closely inspect the same. One of the performers is then put inside the box, which is next carefully looked by any gentleman present, the latter retaining possession of the key. The public are further at liberty to coud the box. using any kind of knot they choose. And lastly, these knots may be scaled. The Cabinet is now brought to the front, and the box, with the performer inside, is placed in the receptacle for the same in the Cabinet. In a few minutes the Public are permitted to open the Cabinet, take out the box, break the seals, untie the knots, and unfasten the lock, when much to their astonishment they will

A member of the Police Force will be requested to bring a pair of his regulation handenfis, and apply the same in the usual manner to Mr. CARBON'S Wrists. Mr. CARSON, during his recent trip to London, visited, Mesers. MASKELYNE and Cooke and Dr. LYNN'S Entertainments, was so much impressed Superintendent, with the expose of the strange manifestations generally attributed to Spiritualism ho then saw, that he determined to purchase the right of exhibition of the same marvellous feats in the East. THE N. C. Daily News states that H. E. L. HAN-CHANG has at last started for Yuman, vid the Tung-ting Lake, Something w therefore, after all, be done before Christmas, What that something will be is, bowever, quite another question. Probably-when the British Commissioners arrive they will find that it has been so nicely arranged that everybody there will be proved perfectly innocent, and that the real culprits have escaped out of the reach of Chinese and British justice alike. In fact they will, it is to feared, make but one discovery, namely, that they have had their journey for nothing. I the immediate authors of the outrage and murders should, however, thus for the time escape the consequences of their villainy and treachery, it is sincerely to be hoped that the British Minister will insist upon every possible effort being made to re-capture them together with an ample indemnity and a safe passage for the next Expedition. The Chinese Government must be taught that nothing is to be gained in the long run by playing us false. The telegram just received, and published in another column, has a good deal of significance. Mr. WADE is evidently by no means assured of the good faith of the Chinese Government.

IT is a pity that newspaper correspondents will thoughtlessly persist in giving currency to vague rumours in such a manner as to invest them with an appearance of probabi lity. Some rumours are harmless, no doubt but in the majority of instances they are more or less alarming. They would not of course be worth inventing or circula-Orders for Copies may be sent to the Daily | ting unless they were likely in some way to create a sensation. Probably it is this circumstance that leads to the fabrication of so many reports which have little if any foundation in fact. Its result would be to delay the settlement of the question, and it would almost necessitate Mr. WADE's accompanying the Embassy to London, since no one there possesses the same full information on the matter or is so well qualified by ex- quiry be found that the prisoner had been seen perience to conduct the affair to a satisfactory leaving the boase with a bundle, and as he termination. It was to test this bydraulio arrangement more especially that the Scoretary of State for War and the other distinguished growing heavier every day, the possibility of working them by manual labour obviously secomes more and more remote. Already we have a large number of gans several tons eavier than "the Woolwich Infant," and before the end of the present month it is anticipated that the monster 81-ton weapon will be completed at Woolwich. In these circumstances. it is almost indispensable that we should have some other assistance in working beavy guns than that afforded by the gunners themselves the labour of leading and training being more difficult from the fact that it is with muzzleoaders, and not breech-loaders, that we bave to deal. Both the Russian and German military attaches must have been especially interested on this account with what they saw, for the artillery employed by those system. It is gratifying to bear that our fficers were well estimied of the gone, and with the practice to which they were subjected before so critical an audience; and if we could only succeed by means of a practical trial in proving the superiority of heavy muzzleloaders on the score of handiness on board ship, we might be quite content with the artillery we have just now.

RUSSIA AND ENGLAND IN ASIA.	la
The debate raised by Mr. Bailtie Coobran	o h

very little consideration also shows that neither	17
have the conditions changed in that way from	ь
the beginning of the Central Asian question	8
hor are they so changing at the present time.
In one respect it will not be denied, we thin	- T -
the changes which have occurred have bee	al g increasingly in our favour. This is in the re-	9 0
resources in men and money of the English an	OT Russian Empires. After all, when it comes t a contest between two Powers, strategical pos
tions and the like indvantages or disadvantage	. 5 go for little. The one which has the best me and means in the greatest numbers, providing it can parry a sudden fatal blow, is sure to com	B off best. Now England at the beginning of the contury, when Napoleon's dream of invadin	g P
India with Rossian help first gave a tangib meaning to the alleged will of Can Peter, i	n Al
which the policy of Russian advance in As	h n
was bequeathed to his successors, was muc venker relatively to Russia in men and mean	n tl than it is now. The simple facts are o	1 1 1 1 this point that while Great Britain, it 1812, was a small State of 12,000,000 in	- hubitante, with a bostile Ireland of 5,000.00 inhabitants on its back, it is now a Stat	e fi
of 27,500,000 inhabitants, with an Irelan	-
of no greater numbers to weigh it down	- and these numbers really not only much les

but so little hostile, and now, by improve	- 7 1
means of communication with Great Britain, glosely connected with it that for all practice purposes in a contest with Russia they are a	- resources. Russia in Europe, in the same period, has only increased from 48,000,000 to mbout 71,000,000 inhabitants; so that we have now nearly half the Russian numbers, whereas formerly, we had about one-fourth. The bu growing much faster in proportion than the	-1 Russian puoleus, and the importance of the fact, when the superiority in our quality of me	_

The exhaustion of Russia at the close of the Crimean war, while our own resources were hardly touched, will not be forgotten; and while it may well publication. The facts of the case may be thus be doubted whether Russia could make a much greater effort than it did then, it is beyond loved the same lady, an actress, who one regrets question we could double or treble our Crimean wer exertions and yet hardly feel the strain. from the bones of Mdme Quiriny, holding bis No doubt it may be urged that the Russian bands on his chest, and entering a chemist's Empire in Asia has grown immonsely in area shop, he said—"Bandage me quickly. Our rate of internal growth, both at home and in India, as well at throughout the rest of the Empiro, is still the quickest, and shows no. sign of slackening. Why should we now begin a contest with Russin, for which the next generation will presumably be even better fitted. It is said, indeed, that it ussia has acquired two. On SHANGHAL. special advantages against which we should be on our guard. Her actual development of military force is much greater than ours and is daily increasing, and this development, coupled with her proximity to India, will enable her to give as much trouble, if not strike a fetal blow. It is not said that the trouble the can give will Union Insurance Society of Canton, new chares probably be as great that we ought to prefer the risk of immediate war, if she will not re- Ohina Traders Loserance Company's Sharestrace some step she has taken, or refrain from some other step which is proposed; but as this is the implied premiss in all such arguments, we take the liberty of supplying it. The reasoning, however, carnot be supported. As yet, at least, the military development of Russis, is certainly not such that any force is placed near enough to the Indian frontier to cause us any concern. Still more, the garrisons required by the Russian Empire are so enormous that, in spite of the development of railways in Southern Hongkong and Whampea Dock Company's Berope and in Puland, it may well be doubted whether Russia could spare a fully equipped force of even thirty or forty thousand men for " point" upon India from any starting place within her own territory. The preparation and equipment of such a force at a distant point on her Asiatic frontier would require immense exertions, as was proved quite lately by the very. Houghong Hotel Company's Shares-$574 per much smaller expedition to Khive; and such au. expedition with a march before it -reckoning from the neavest point on the Russian frontier to India, exceeding five times the length of Sherman's famone, march from Atlanta to the sea, would be co vain and foolish, and so sure of failure, even if India could be taken by surprise, that it will co tainly not be Kwong-wab-yoen to travelling trader. tried until a new change of circumstances. Even if the expedition should be doubled or trobled in numbers, which few military authorities who have studied the topography of the countries floors to travelling trader. in question believe to be nousible, the attempt would still be foolish. Unless English soldiers have degenerated, any such Bussian expedition must be destroyed. Nor is any step immediately mee hop-kee to travelling trader. threatened which would give Roseis a substantial additional advantage. Perhaps, sa time goes on, if her military development progresses, if her communications throughout Central Asia are improved, if she tries to nequire Herst, and so gain a firm footing at 800 miles distance from ndia, these and other possible events may create so much immediate troublithat immediate war to evert them would be preferable. But, as the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs very well put it, we must not form decisions beforehand on hypothetical cases. Our real strength, as we have seen, is growing faster than that of Russia; the improvement of communication with our East-Russia is exposed to great dangers from a LAVE always on hand a Stock of CLEAR, ness. In this respect the work will be found Russia is exposed to great dangers from a neighbour like Germany, which may absorb all her energies. The circumstances supposed may Haves arise, or, if they do arise, we may be while to tolerate them, as we have done past Russian aggressions, without any cause to apprehend a direct attack upon our own interests, which we should not be more able to repel than we are: We should think also that it must be growing or at the Works at Fast Point. Those preclear to the Russian Government, if it is not so ferring to use Pass Books use do so in England, that the advence of Russia in Asia is that of a weaker Power towards one infinitely stronger, puts an instrument of offence in the ands of that stronger Power of a most formidable kind. Russia is, in fact, placing a number of "Urlmens" within striking distance of India — Orimeas which England and India may attack from their inaccessible bases, and the defence I which will drain Russian resources as the efence of Sebastopol drained them. In a nilitary sense, the folly of the Russian Governnent in venturing nearpr and nearer to India, n multiplying the points at an immense distance rom the centre on which the may herself be atnoked, is, indeed, supreme. If Bussia is our rival n the East, as the argument goes, she carnet be praised for astuteness in pursuing the rivalry.

She would be infinitely more dangerous to Turkey and Persia at the present moment, and brough them to India, if she had refused altorether to cross the Kirghiz desert, and, instead of dispersing vast numbers and spending much money to garrisou Turkeston and the Turtar rontier, had husbanded her resources for the vital points of conflict. Even as regards an attack on or expedition towards India, she is ittle butter placed than she has been for ten rears and more with a toto dupont at Asternbad, and perfect means of communication with that point by means of the Volga and the Cuspian. The most important immediate effect of her conducate in Jentral Asia is to expose her to ttack from India in that region, so that her neans of action in other quarters will be reduced. For these remons the equalimity with which the Government and the House of Commons iscuse the Central Asian question is amply detified. A curious tradition, arising and ourished in nireamstances totally different rom the present, and, above all, when Hogang was less strong and Russia was less weak clatively than they are now, has made a bugpear of the Russian advance towards the Inian frontier. But bircumstances are always banging, and the tradition must not blind us when the conditions, which made a Russian adence so threatening at one time in the imaination of political dreamers, have so entirely banged in our favour .- Economist (Continued from first page.) Extracts. A LEGEND OF MULL. BY THE MARQUIS OF LORNE, IN "GOOD WORDS." Dark, with shrouds of mist surrounded. Rise the mountains from the shore. Where the galleys of the Islemen Stand updrawn, their voyage o'er. Horns this morn are hearsely sounding From Lock Buy's ancient wall. While for chase the guests and vassals . Gather in the court and hall.

Hounds, whose volces could give warning From far moors of stage at bay, Quiver in each iron muscle, Howl, impatient of delay. Henchmon, waiting for the signal, At their chief's imperious word, Start, to drive from hill and corrie. To the Pass, the watchful herd.

Vain high courage, speed, or scent; Every mesh, a man in ambush, Ready, with the crossbow bent. "Eachan, guard that glade and copsewood,

Closed were paths, as with a netting,

At your peril, let none by,"
Cries the chief, while in the heather Silently the huntsmen lie.

Shouting by the green morasses, Where the fairies dance at night, Yelling mid the oak and birches. Come the bearers into sight.

And before them, rushing wildly, Is the driven berd of deer. Whose wide antiers toss like branches In the winter of the year. Useless was the vasal's effort. To arrest the living flow; And it passed by Enclian's passage Spite of hound, and shout, and blow. "Dog, through you our sport is barren: Why allowed you them to pass? Back—no answer—hark, men, hither: Take his stuff, and bind him fast." Hearing was with them obeying, And the hunter's strong limbs lie, Bound with thonge from tawny oxen, 'Neath the chieftain's cruel eye.

With red stripes of that good ashwood:
Mend me thus this broken mesh!" Ah, Loch Buy, faint and sullen Beats the heart once leal and free, That had yielded life, exulting If it bled for thine and thee

More than twoscore stage have passed him, Mark the number on his flesh,

But, as waters round Eoren Darken deep, then blanch in foam, When the winds Ben More has harboured Burst in thunder from their home: So the brow fear never clouded Blackens now 'neath Anger's pall. And the lips, to speak disdaining, Whiten at Rovenge's call. PART SECOND.

Late, when many years had passed him, And the chief's old age begun, Seemed his youth again to blossom.

With the birth of his fair son. Late, when all his days had hardened

Into flint his nature wild. Seem'd it softer grown, and kinder. For the sake of that one child. And again a hunting morning.
Saw Look Buy and his men. With his boy, his guests and kinsmon. Hidden e'er a coppicod gien.

Heir of all the vassal's homage. Rendered to the grisly sire, He had grown his people's treasure, Fostered as their heart's desire. Surely Bafety guarde his footsteps : Enmity he hath not sown: Yet-who is it who glides near him-Whose the arm thus round him thrown? It is Eachan! who has, wolflike Seized upon a helpless proy! Fariously and fast he bears him Where a cliff o'erhangs the hay.

There, while sea-birds scream around them. Liolding by his throat the boy, Eachan turns, and to the father. Shouts in scorn, and mocking joy: "Take the punishment thou guvest-Give before all there a pledge

For my freedom, or thy darling, Dying, falls from yonder ledge! "Take the strokes in even number. As thou gavest-blow for blow-Then, dishonoured, on thine honour. Swear, to let me freely go!" Silent, in his powerless anger, Stood the chief, with all his folk;

And before them all the ransom Was exacted, stroke for stroke. Then again the voice of vengeance Pealed from Eachan's lips in hate; "Childless and dishenoured villain, Expiation comes too late.

"My revenge is not completed: And they saw, in dumb despair, How he harl'd his victim downward Headlong, through the empty airl Then they heard a yell of laughter, As they turned away the eye; And they gazed again, where nothing

BLUE SLEEP. One of the pleasantest of the quaint fancies against Fire at Current Bates, less 20% diethat Sir Arthur Holps scattered freely count. through "Realmah" was that of buying sleep. In that strange country where "tired nature's sweet restorer" could be bought there were three grades of it, of corresponding prices, of which the costliest was of a pale blue colour. This plunged, or rather sank, the happy buyer into profound and dreamless eleep; whereas the cheaper kinds only procured the lighter form of rest and forgetfulness which we call slumber. Strange as it seems, sleep is the greatest need of man, next to air. He can live on a reduction of his hours of sleep, even in moderate proportion; results in insanity or in death. We have said that this is strange; and is it not so that the greatest been and the greatest need in life should be absolute oblivion? that to enjoy, indeed to endure two-thirds of life we must pass one-third. or nearly that proportion of it in a state of absolute unconsciousness. For sleep to 1 Policies against Fire to the extent of A: be perfectly refreshing should be dreamless. $45,000 on First-class Risks It is the absolute striking out of one-third of the Current Local Rates of Premia will be al- Fa a life not too long, except to those whose lowed upon Insurances effected with this Office. Fe days are without joy and whose hearts without hope. Looked at in a certain way, too, it seems unnecessary, and unsatisfactory. We all crave for sleep, and if it does not come at our bidding, we toss and worry and fret ourselves into a condition entirely unfit for sleep. And yet all that we know, and, therefore, all that we enjoy of what we so much long for, l is the consciousness of falling into it, and that of coming out of it, refreshed. The accordance with the Company's Articles of As- N rest is blank, silent, unconscious darkness. So far as we ourselves know, we simply are not. What a saving of life it would be if we could summon sleep when we choose to do so, enjoy for a few moments that sweet, consoling consciousness of sinking away into perfect rest, and, after remaining a few moments in absolute and dreamless sleep, have the sensation of returning consciousness refreshment, and restored vigour of mind and body! Could even a babe wake up other than good-natured under such circumstauces? It is toward such a Utopia of sleep that Helps' fancy points - perfect rest and restoration to be had at pleasure. And his blue sleep was not, in one respect, altogether a fancy; for the fashion of buying sleep has become very common, or at least far too common, of late years. It is probable that Helps did not have this in mind, because the use of the sleeping-draught to which we refer was not very prevalent when he wrote "Real-
